litical party, by making partisan speeches or prayers in New Orleans. from the pulpit. The circumstances here alluded to by the editor of the Journal in the quotation given above is this: A minister of the Gospel of this town, who is a vindictive whig partisan, has seen fit to prostitute his high and holy vocation by delivering partisin sermons and even prayers from the pulpit, using strong assertions without proof, declamation and measures of the democratic party, without digni- sicks, against 17,874; of corn in ear, 179,319 brls., sylvania, as having been unlawfully engaged in the slave without argument, and violently censuring the men ty or moderation. On Sabbath before last, as usual, this clergymen saw fit to vent his spleen up n the administration, by denouncing them as corrupt rulers for waging an unjust, unholy, and ungodly war pork, 134,811 brls., against 99,964; of bacon and that satisfactory evidence of a full compliance with those revine had delivered his political speech in the shape of in bulk, 240,952 lbs., against 11,000; of lard, 53,357 ry before a new register shall be issued, as herein provided. against an innocent nation. After this partisan Dia prayer, several of the members of the congregation tres, and brls., and 165,817 kegs, against 36,919 tres. arose and left the Church, remarking, that if he de- and bris., and 154.193 kegs; of whiskey, 73,278 sired to make a whig speech, they would prefer listening to his declamation and assertions, with regard to the unjustness of the war, some evening in the Court House, when and where some member of the democratic party would have on opportunity of replying.

This young political clergyman came to Indianapolis eight or nine years ago. He is a young man, possessing great fluency of speech, and a splendid imagination, giving every Sabbath fine descriptions and comparisons, drawn from the various books of fiction, with which his crazed brain is well stored, (for no person has ever had the harditood to accuse him of reasoning on any subject.) His gestures are fine, and to this question: it is equal to a dramatic performance to witness them. Among the many original gestures which he is in the habit of making, is one which certainly produces a great effect, at least upon-himself, rendering him speechless during the performance, viz: after some splendid flight of the imagination, he folds his arms across his breast, and looks at his delighted congrewitness any performance equal to that? What a won-derful man I am! Indeed from the flattery which he being but 21,105 brls. this season against 22,474 last has received since he has been here, his egotism has become unbounded, and his ambition puffs him up with vanity and wind, and he is troubled to see any person above him in the estimation of the community in which he resides; hence his abuse of men who are above him. But his agathemas cannot reach nor in-

In 1840 his friends could scarcely restrain him from of flour, pork, corn and whisky. democratic party. And yet the editor of the Journal been for the last seven or eight years, abusing and insulting the democratic members of his church, who were giving their hard earnings to support him. We regret that the editor of the Journal should have alluded to this matter at all, and more especially in the manner which he has seen fit so to do, for political effect. But however much we may regret a difficulty in any church, we must be permitted to express the candid opinion, that the democratic members of the church on the occasion referred to, acted not only right, but they deserve commendation for their course. It is true that three-fourths of the persons composing the congregation are whigs; but still the feelings of the democratic members of the church ought to be respected. If this partisan clergyman intends preaching the peculiar political doctrines of the whig party, in place of the pure and holy doctrines to be found in the Bible, he ought candidly to inform his congregation of that fact, so that his hearers might know what they had to expect when they went to hear his political harangues from the pulpit. But we hope that all these difficulties may be settled amicably by the minister preaching no more political sermons from the pulpit in future, and that this church may prosper and last the life of
